

vs. Pirates

(A Discworld Roleplaying Game Scenario.)

You were half-way through the Imperial Ninja Instruction Course when the Empire declared that it no longer needed ninja, and you were reassigned. Then the Empire decided that it might need ninja after all...

An increasing number of subjects of the Empire are insisting on travelling abroad, and enterprising merchants have built vessels to convey them in comfort. But now, word has reached the Ministry of Undermanaged Provinces that certain maritime bandits of the Islands may be contemplating an assault on one such vessel.

It seems most unlikely, but the Department of Despicable Necessities may take no chances with the lives of even foolish subjects. Which is why your ninja team is getting a free cruise on which to be one with the shadows. But remember, if the rumours are true, you may have to prove that "Kiaaaaah!" is superior to "Yah, me hearties!"
